Whatever You Think, Think The Opposite. Tuesday, December 24th, 2013; Until the Mexico Olympics of 1968 the customary way for a high jumper to cross the bar was with his body parallel to it, in a technique known as the Western Roll. But that was about to change. A little-known athlete approached the bar, which was set at a world record height of 7ft 4 1/4 inches (2.24m).
